Cycle's of Faith

32nd Sunday In Ordinary Time

Every scout knows the motto, "Be Prepared." Even the general public commonly associates the words with scouting. What's less well-known is that Robert Baden-Powell describes this preparedness as being in a state of readiness of both mind and body. For him, to be prepared in mind meant that a scout had thought out beforehand any situation that might occur, so that he or she would know the right thing to do at the right moment, and be willing to do it. Being prepared in body meant that a scout would be strong and active and able to do the right thing at the right moment.

The Gospel parable of the wise and foolish virgins could be said to be an example of Baden-Powell's scouting philosophy. The wise virgins were prepared in mind. They had thought through the process recognizing that if the bridegroom were to be delayed they would need extra oil to keep their lamps burning.

Of course the parable is not about scouting. But we who await the arrival of the bridegroom, Jesus Christ, should be prepared just as readily as any scout. For us being prepared to "do the right thing at the right moment" means that we have formed our consciences in line with the moral teaching of Christ and that we are ready to act as a Christian in the face of injustice and immorality. It means that we have chosen a way of life that aligns our actions with the teachings of the Gospel, prepared to help those in need. We Christians have waited a long time for the return of the Lord. In that time we have fed the poor, tended the sick, educated the young, sheltered the homeless, preached the Gospel, and championed the oppressed. Not everything that we have done has been perfect, because we are still sinners. We still have much left to do to prepare ourselves for the bridegroom's coming. ©2011 Liturgical Publications Inc

New Translation of the Roman Missal Nov. 26-27

Ten Questions on the Roman Missal, Third Edition (#5 & #6 of 10)

Additional information online at <http://old.usccb.org/romanmissal/>

5. Can we start using the texts approved by the bishops immediately?

The translation of the Missale Romanum could not be used in the celebration of the Mass until the complete text was confirmed by the Holy See. Now that the translation has received the recognitio, the USCCB has established the first day on which the new translation may be used. Use of the revised text requires preparation and catechesis for both priests and the faithful. When the time comes to use the texts in the celebration of the Mass, priests will be properly trained, the faithful will have an understanding and appreciation of what is being prayed, and musical settings for the liturgical texts will be readily available.

6. What will the process of implementation look like?

Now that the recognitio has been granted, final preparation and publication of the Missal will commence. Catechesis on the new translation and on the Liturgy itself will become even more important. Training for priests, music ministers, and other liturgical leaders (liturgy committees and liturgical commissions), as well as formation for all Catholics, will help to ensure the successful implementation of the new text.
